QUEEN ANNE'S
GATE SW1
CITY OF WESTMINSTER

A House With A History

28 Queen Anne’s Gate is a fine example of early Queen Anne style, with the Dutch influence of Queen Anne’s predecessor, William of Orange, evident in the rare carved wooden canopy which frames the door. This was a brief period in architectural history, preluding the mass development of the Georgian Age and as such the house, and indeed the street, is of particular architectural interest.

Originally built as a fine London townhouse, Atelier have endeavoured to capture the essence of the building’s architecture whilst combining it with the latest in contemporary luxury and modern technology for its 21st century inhabitants.

“To stumble upon this most exquisite of streets is one of London’s best architectural surprises...also about the only place where you will see London houses of the 18th century in near mint condition.”

London by E Harwood and A Saint, 1991

A Grand Entrance

Inside the double height panelled entrance hall, the original Queen Anne staircase sweeps from ground to first floor. This imposing architectural feature carved of English Oak was designed to impress visitors on immediate arrival at the property.

Also on the ground floor is a striking, stately formal dining room overlooking the principal terrace and St James's Park beyond, a reception room at the front of the house and a state-of-the-art wine and cigar room.

The Garden Floor

The garden floor is occupied predominantly by the more informal living spaces. There is a contemporary kitchen / breakfast room and a huge open plan family dining and living area which alone comprises over 600 square feet (56 square metres), with doors leading to the landscaped garden.

Period Drama

The grand staircase leads to the 'piano nobile' with a formal study at the front, and to the rear a grand drawing room, 5 windows wide, with spectacular green views over St James's Park.

The study has been tastefully decorated with slate grey walls, bespoke Walnut joinery, parquet flooring and lacquered bookshelves, whilst the drawing room is an elegant statement room, with restored period features and bathed in natural light from floor to ceiling sash windows.

The Master Suite

A private, understated space, the master bedroom with interlinking dressing room and his and her en-suites, occupies the entire second floor. Natural Oak floor, Oak floor inlaid with a luxurious thick-pile carpet and bespoke Eucalyptus Pommele joinery toned to the wall colour ensures a clean, simple symmetry with verdant views over St James's Park.

Guest Bedrooms

The upper two floors are home to four distinct bedrooms with private en-suite bathrooms and bespoke fitted wardrobes.
